Our Missouri Waters

A new Approach to Improving Water Quality in Missouri

Presentation by Steve Krabbe,
Watershed Coordinator, Kansas City Office, MDNR

Our Missouri Waters is the Missouri Department of Natural Resources' new approach to improving the quality of the waters in Missouri. Although the quality of rivers and lakes in Missouri has improved dramatically over the last 40 years, improvements can still be found. Instead of focusing on regulating point sources of pollutants, now, the focus is shifting to look at each watershed and its unique situation.

Our Missouri Waters aims to bring groups working to improve water quality together to set priorities and make a plan of action to build upon our cumulative successes. By forming partnerships, we will be able to take a holistic approach that is approved and supported by all involved.

Steve will talk about the Our Missouri Waters model, how it fits with of MDNR, the pilot phase, and how it will begin in the Kansas City Region.
